Where Are We At?

"Where are we at?" was the subject of D. J. Williamson's discurse to about 150 persons in the open air at the corner of Fulton street and De Kalb avenue, Brooklyn, at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon. He is an elderly man with full, gray whiskers. First a hymn was sung by two companions, one a grayhaired woman, and the other a short, stout man with a bushy black mustache. Then Mr. Williamson extend-A particle is applied into each nostril and is trecable. Price 50 cents at druggists; by ail, registered, 60 cents.

determined his hands and asked a blessing on the crowd that had by this time gathered about him. He kept a big sealskin cap pulled down over his ears.
"Where are we at," said he, "

question we well may ask, for the Word of God is about to be fulfilled and this earth consumed with everlasting fire. Even now while I speak the clock is striking the hour of 10 in the day of the Christian dispensation. It will strike 11 in a few weeks, and about the 10th of June the midnight hour will strike, and then will come the end of this world and the era of a thousand years of peace.

As he said this he pulled out a big roll of manuscript. Then the woman who had sung leaned forward with an anxious look as if she feared to miss a single word that fell from the lips of the latter day prophet. The short, stout man folded his arms and tried to look resigned to the terrible fate awaiting the onlookers who stood about with ing the onlookers who stood about with smiling faces.

"God, or no God," said the speaker, the prophecies of the good old book are about to become true, and unless you accept its teachings at once and repent of your sin you will be melted after the 10th of June. Beware, my hearers. Hardly two months are left for represents for that awful June 10th, when preparation for that awful June 10th, when creed and sects will go to the dogs, and you along with them, unless you believe in the

"You may laugh at me, but_the antedilu-"You may laugh at me, out, the antenni-vians laughed at Noah. We stand now just as those antediluvians did in the day of Noah's preaching. Those who believed and entered into the ark were saved, and those who did not were drowned. Now I offer you the ark of safety from the flood of fire which will sweep over New York and Brooklyn in June".

there who would get that printed for him. No one volunteered to do so, and he passed around his sealskin cap for contributions to a fund to pay for the publication and distribution of his discourse. The only contributor was a ragged newsboy, who seemed very much affected by the discourse, and dropped in two cents. The short, stout singer said all that he had was religion and the woman singer refused to look in the cap when it reached her. She was intent on reading from a small testament which she held in her hand.

Mr. Williamson says he is from Hartford, where he had a good meat and groeery business which he gave up to come and warn New York and Brooklyn of the wrath to come. REMARKABLE ANTS.-A cook was

The cook decided to make a circuit around the pies with molasses and namit the result. He did not have long to wait, for at 6.20 he noticed the first strictly pure). to wait, for at 6:30 he noticed that off in the left corner of the pantry was a

They seemed like a vast army coming forth to attack the enemy. In front was a leader, who always kept a little ahead of his troops. They were of the sort known as the medium-sized red which is regarded as the most intelligent of its kind whose scientific name is formica rubra.

About forty ants out of five hundred stepped out and joined the leader. The general and his aids held a council, and then proceeded to examine the circle of molasses. Certain portions seemed to be assigned to the different ants, and each selected unerringly the point in the section under his charge where the stream of molasses was narrowest. Then the leader made his tour of inspection. The order to march was given, and the ants made their way to a hole in the wall, at which the plastering was loose.

Here they broke ranks and set about carrying pieces of plaster to the places in the molase; which had been agreed upon as the narrowest. To and fro they went from the nail-hole to the molasses, until at 11:20 o'clock, they had thrown a bridge across. Then they formed themselves in line again FRESH & SALTED FISH, and marched over, and by 1:45 every and was eating pie.—Toledo Blade.
